

It would be a grave error to allow cell phone usage during flights. Passengers already fight over seatbacks, overhead bins and loud conversations as it is. This would only provoke more confrontations amongst them. Many business people have also expressed their fear of never getting peace and quiet from their offices, colleagues and bosses. To many individuals lack common manners and basic decency. Judging by the many conversations I cannot help but be subjected to in the airport terminals, I beg you to keep the airplane free of that same intrusion. Thank you. Moya Doss, Purser, United Airlines.
